

WebSecurify iOS Edition Scanner Testing Hackazon

Cross-site Scripting

Cross-site Scripting (XSS) is a type of web application security vulnerability which allows code injection by malicious web users into the web pages viewed by other users. An exploited XSS vulnerability could be used by attackers to bypass access controls, steal data, craft phishing attacks and launch targeted attacks using browser exploits.

solution: Sanitize all user-supplied data before using it as part of dynamically generated pages and data.

```
GET
http://hackazon.webscantest.com/search/page/?page=2&id&brands&price&quality&searchString=%22'%3CizCMi%3E HTTP/1.1

request:

```
http://hackazon.webscantest.com/search/page/?page=2&id&searchString&brands&quality&price=%22'%3CizCMi%3E HTTP/1.1

request:

```
GET http://hackazon.webscantest.com/search?id&searchString=%22'%3CizCMi%3E
HTTP/1.1
```

Cross-site Request Forgery

Cross-site Request Forgery (CSRF) is a type of attack whereby unauthorized commands are transmitted from a user that the application trusts. Unlike Cross-site Scripting (XSS), which exploits the trust a user has for a particular site, CSRF exploits the trust that a site has in a user's browser.

solution: Url and Forms that perform important operations must be protected by random tokens (hidden nonce values). These tokens must be checked for validity at the server before the request is processed.

Path Disclosure

Various system paths were disclosed within the application client source code or other files. This information could be used by attackers to make an educated guess about the application environment and any inherited weaknesses that may come with it.

solution: It is recommended to re-examine the system path disclosures and remove their reference from the application's source code.

Autocomplete Enabled

Autocomplete should be disabled (`autocomplete="off"`), especially in forms which process sensitive data, such as forms with password fields, since an attacker, if able to access the browser cache, could easily obtain the cached information in cleartext.

solution: Disable the autocomplete feature (`autocomplete="off"`) on forms which may hold sensitive data.

Error Disclosure

Various web errors were disclosed within the application source code or other files. This information could be used by attackers to make an educated guess about the application environment type, version and current configuration. In some situations these errors may indicate a weakness which could be exploited.

solution: It is strongly recommended to ensure that any unhandled application errors are trapped and never displayed to the user. The user should only see a generic message which contains enough information to track the error within the application logs.
